Book Buzz

Children were introduced to an interesting book: "Kissing hand" by Audrey Penn. A heartwarming story of a young Chester raccoon that feared being away from his mother and start going to school. Mother raccoon lovingly reassures Chester by sharing a secret with him. The secret of The Kissing Hand! She kisses Chester's palm and then teaches him that whenever he felt lonely or scared all he need to do was to press his hand on his cheek and remember that his mommy loved him. With such assurances of love, Chester was able to go to school. However, being such a sensitive raccoon, he decided that his mother needs a Kissing Hand too! The story aptly deal with the fears of children dealing with difficult emotions of starting school and getting comfortable at the end.

Classroom Scoop

Making of first aid kit: children were taught the importance of first aid and its relevance in everyday life, they were informed about how they could attend to an ailing person at the time of emergency. Students were given the cutouts of the first aid kit and the equipments related to the kit like band aid, ointment, cotton, gauge etc to paste in the box to understand about the basic components that are part of a first aid kit. They enjoyed learning the new concept and were excited to get a hands on experience.

Beyond Classroom

Pottery day: Clay modeling is an art that enhances fine motor skills and helps children build their creativity. The children had hands on experience to see and make pots of various kinds. They saw the beautiful art of modeling and molding things out of clay. The children also saw the use of the pottery wheel and the expertise required to mould clay into artifacts.

Word Wall

Children were introduced to the world of phonic sounds, cursive letters for better reading and writing. Along with the teacher they learnt the initial sounds and their pronunciation. They showed interest in reading the small words that they came up with. The word wall now seems to be the favourite spot of all children as they get a collection of words for expressing their thoughts.
